Oates, E. W. [=Oates, Eugene William]

Oates, Eugene W. [=Oates, Eugene William]

Oates, Eugene William (1845–1911; England)
Born in Italy, educated in England. Served in the Public Works Department in Burma (=Myanmar) from 1867 to 1899, retiring as Chief Engineer. In the last years of his life became deeply interested in the difficult group of Kalij and Silver Pheasants, his fine collection of which was transferred to the Natural History Museum in London shortly before his death. The fact that Hume made over to Oates the whole of his notes and correspondence when the latter was preparing to edit the 2nd ed. of Hume's The nests and eggs of Indian birds testifies to the high regard Oates inspired in his contemporaries. In preparing the manuscript for the catalogue of the eggs in the collection of the British Museum, he had to treat about 50,000 specimens!

Palin, Hugh Fletcher (1858–1909; England)

Son of Charles Thomas Palin. Born in Poona [=Pune], educated in England. In June 1858 he was appointed Assistant Superintendent of Police, Punjab. Served in Jhelum and Rawalpindi Districts and was transferred to the frontier and posted to Peshawar 1881. Promoted to District Superintendent of Police in 1893. In 1908, posted as Deputy Inspector-General of Police at Lahore. He died suddenly while chatting with friends at a party in Lahore.

In The birds of Kutch (1945, p. vi) Sálim Ali informs, '…it appears that this gentleman was an enthusiastic naturalist residing in the State at the time, who had undertaken to collect and classify specimens for a natural history museum proposed to be established in Bhuj.'

Peters, J. L. [=Peters, James Lee]

Peters, James Lee (1889–1952; USA)
Ornithologist. Curator of Birds at the Museum of Comparative Zoology, Harvard University. Began the card catalogue, in 1928, which finally became the foundation for his Check-list, his main occupation for the succeeding years of his life. Was awarded the American Ornithologists' Union's Brewster Medal for this work. Was Vice-President of the AOU in 1938, becoming President from 1942 to 1945. Was Secretary of the Nuttall Ornithological Club (1922–1932), becoming its President in 1942, serving in that capacity until his death. Edited Bird-Banding from 1939 to 1950. Was a member of the International Commission on Zoological Nomenclature, later serving as its President. Besides ornithological interests, was a member, secretary and treasurer of the volunteer fire department. Also active in the administration of the Community Memorial Hospital, as secretary of the Executive Committee and serving on the Building Committee. In WWI was a member of the American Legion, and for seven years was Commander of the local post. Yet another activity was participation in local amateur theatricals: he appeared in some 20 plays. Was posthumously honoured as a Patron of the AOU in 1956.

Phillips, John Charles (1876–1938; USA)
Naturalist. Being independently wealthy, never practised medicine though he completed his MD program in 1904. Instead, he made it his goal to become a conservation-oriented independent public servant, and to this end spent a well-filled life travelling, observing, collecting specimens and collaborating with both individuals and institutions according to purpose. It was Phillips, for example, who raised the money to support the studies of Harper and Allen leading to the survey volumes on extinct and vanishing mammals of the old and new worlds published in 1945 and 1942, respectively. Was also a founder (and first chairman) of the American Committee for International Wild Life. Over 200 publications reflect his wide-ranging interests in animal breeding, sport hunting, ornithology, international wildlife conservation, faunal surveys and systematic reviews, Mendelian genetics, bibliography and history; his most successful was probably his four-part monograph A natural history of the ducks. Was also a notable philanthropist who not only donated several his collections of specimens and artefacts to various institutions, but also gave away several large tracts of land to support nature reserve development.

Phillips, W. W. A. [=Phillips, William Watt Addison]

Phillips, Major William Watt Addison (1892–1981; England)

Naturalist. Phillips was a founder member of the Ceylon Bird Club and for many years its Secretary / Chairman. He went to Ceylon (=Sri Lanka) before WWI, joined the Ceylon Planters' Rifle Corps, and was commissioned in the 24th Punjab, Indian Army in 1915 and discharged in 1919. Taken prisoner at Kut-al-Amara in the Mesopotamian Campaign (now in Iraq), and while a prisoner of war seriously took up the study of natural history. Back in Sri Lanka he became a tea planter and devoted all his leisure to the study and description of the fauna of Sri Lanka and their conservation. He served again in WWII.

Reichenbach, Heinrich Gottlieb Ludwig (1793–1879; Germany)

Botanist and ornithologist. From 1810 studied medicine and natural science at the University of Leipzig. Became an instructor in 1818. In 1820 was appointed director of the Dresden natural history museum and professor at the University of Dresden, where he remained till 1862. Was later the founder of the Dresden botanical gardens and joint founder of Dresden Zoo. The museum's zoological collection was almost gutted by the fire in the Zwinger palace during the constitutional crisis of 1849, but Reichenbach was able to replace it within a few years. He was a prolific author and able botanical artist.

Ripley, Sidney Dillon, II [=Ripley II, Sidney Dillon]

Ripley II, Sidney Dillon (1913–2001; USA)
Ornithologist. After graduating from Yale University, decided that birds were more interesting than law and took to studying zoology at Columbia University. A visit to India when he was 13 led to his later specialization in the ornithology of India. Secretary, Smithsonian Institution (1964–1984). During WWII, joined the Office of Strategic Services, the predecessor of the Central Intelligence Agency and oversaw American intelligence services in Southeast Asia. Professor of Zoology and Director of the Peabody Museum at Yale University. Awarded the United States' highest civilian honour, the Presidential Medal of Freedom, in 1985.

Rothschild, Lionel Walter [=Rothschild, Lionel Walter]

Rothschild, Walter [=Rothschild, Lionel Walter]

Rothschild, Lionel Walter; Baron Rothschild (1868–1937; England)
Banker, politician, zoologist, taxonomist, and soldier. President of the Board of Deputies of British Jews (1925–1926). Though he belonged to one of the richest banking families of the world, he was not interested in the family business, and gave it up when he turned 40. Had a large private zoo on his family estate. His collection of bird specimens was the largest in private hands, with 300,000 skins and 200,000 eggs. Ernst Hartert was curator of his bird collection (1892–1930). Innumerable animals were named after him. Fell victim to a blackmailer and was forced to sell his collection to the American Museum of Natural History An original signatory to the appeal that led to the formation of the British Trust for Ornithology. He willed his collection to the British Museum, its greatest accession ever. The Walter Rothschild Zoological Museum at Tring is now a division of the Natural History Museum. Honorary doctorate, University of Giessen (1898); Trustee, British Museum (1899 onwards); Fellow of the Royal Society (1911). Conservative Member of Parliament (1899–1910). Retired as Major of the Territorial Army (1909). A prominent Zionist, he received the Balfour Declaration (1917). Held the Austrian title, 'Baron de Rothschild'. Authored more than 750 papers. Founder editor—along with Hartert and his entomological curator, Karl Jordan—of the Novitates Zoologicae, a journal devoted to systematic zoology, published from Tring.

Salvin, Osbert (1835–1898; England)

Naturalist. Educated at Westminster School and Cambridge University (Trinity Hall, B.A.). Salvin was Curator of the Strickland Collection of birds, for eight years, at Cambridge. Collected in the Americas with his good friend Frederic DuCane Godman. Their amazing collection of Neotropical birds, comprising 520,000 skins and many eggs was bequeathed to the British Museum. Salvin is best known for co-authoring Biologia Centrali-Americanum (1879–1915) with Frederick DuCane Godman. This was a 63-volume work on the natural history of Central America. Salvin was a founder member of the British Ornithologists' Union and became editor of Ibis in 1871. Was Secretary of the BOU at the time of his death. The Godman-Salvin Medal, a prestigious award of the British Ornithologists' Union, is named after him and Godman.

Sankaran, R. [=Sankaran, Ravi]

Sankaran, Ravi (1963–2009; India)
Ornithologist at the Bombay Natural History Society, 1985–1992. In 1992 he joined the Sálim Ali Centre for Ornithology and Natural History (Coimbatore, Tamil Nadu); Director (2008–2009). Sankaran studied several little-known yet endangered species of India: Little Florican, Great Indian Bustard, Narcondam Hornbill, Nicobar Megapode, and Edible-nest Swiftlets. He found his stamping grounds in grasslands, the Himalaya, and in the Andaman and Nicobar Islands. Besides pursuing pure ornithology and ecology, he was passionate about community conservation; the latter evident in his work with people in Nagaland, and in espousing sustainable captive breeding of swiftlets. Sankaran was a hands-on conservationist, and preferred spending his time in the field; his exploits have attained legendary status. His research papers and publications are revered in Indian natural history circles. Caridina ravisankarani sp. nov., is eponymous (DOI: https://doi.org/10.11646/zootaxa.5057.3.5).

Schlegel, Hermann (1804–1884; Germany)

Ornithologist, herpetologist, ichthyologist. Born in Germany but worked in the Netherlands. Opposed Darwin's theory of the origin of species. Assistant to C. J. Temminck at the Natural History Museum at Leiden (1825), succeeding him as Director when he died (1858). Intereted in the ornithology of South-east Asia. Published the scientific journal Notes from the Leiden Museum, and the 14-volume Muséum d'histoire naturelle des Pays-Bas, illustrated by John Gerrard Keulemans, Joseph Smit, and Joseph Wolf. Several taxa have been named after Schlegel. His elder son, Gustaaf Schlegel (1840–1903), was a naturalist and sinologist, and his younger, Leander Schlegel (1844–1913), a celebrated composer and pianist.

Schäfer, Ernst (1910–1992; Germany)

German hunter, explorer, zoologist, and ornithologist. Made three expeditions to Tibet, the third (1938) led by himself under the patronage of Himmler's Ahnenerbe organization. Joined the SS in 1933, and saw action on the Eastern Front. After WWII claimed to have been an unwilling recruit, and was acquitted and released in 1947. Head of the Zoological Department, Lower Saxony State Museum, Hanover (1960–1970). Specialised in the birds of Venezuela, and lectured on zoology and biology in Caracas. His collections are in the Natural History Museum, Berlin.

Sclater, P. L. [=Sclater, Philip Lutley]

Sclater, Philip Lutley (1829–1913; England)

Lawyer and zoologist. Educated at Winchester College and Christ Church College, Oxford, where he studied scientific ornithology under Hugh Edwin Strickland. Father of William Lutley Sclater. In 1858 Sclater published a paper in the Proceedings of the Linnean Society, setting up six zoological regions, which he called the Palaearctic, Aethiopian, Indian, Australasian, Nearctic and Neotropical. These zoogeographic regions are still in use. Played a prominent part in founding The Ibis, the journal of the British Ornithologists' Union, and became its first editor (1859). Was secretary of the Zoological Society of London from 1860 to 1903. When R. Bowdler Sharpe founded the British Ornithologists' Club, he was elected its first Chairman (1892). His collection of 9,000 bird skins was transferred to the Natural History Museum, London in 1886. Died as a result of a carriage accident.

Scott, Peter [=Scott, Sir Peter Markham]

Scott, Sir Peter Markham (1909–1989; England)

Son of Antarctic explorer Robert Falcon Scott. Naturalist, artist, sportsman, soldier, television broadcaster. Represented Great Britain and Northern Ireland at sailing in the 1936 Olympic Games, winning a bronze medal. Served in the Royal Navy in WWII, 'contributing his artistic eye, and knowledge of the counter-shading of waterbirds, to improving the camouflage of ships' (Kear 1990). He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for bravery. Founded the Wildfowl and Wetlands Trust in 1948. Founder member of World Wide Fund for Nature and designer of its popular panda logo. He invented the IUCN's Red Data Books, which listed the world's rarest animals and plants and designed their osprey logo. Chancellor of the University of Birmingham 1973–1983. He was awarded the BOU Union Medal (1959), knighted (1973), awarded the J. Paul Getty Prize (1986), and was made a Companion of Honour and a Fellow of the Royal Society (1987).

Seebohm, H. [=Seebohm, Henry]

Seebohm, Henry (1832–1895; England)

Steel manufacturer, amateur ornithologist, oologist, and traveller. His interest in natural history led him to travel widely, in Greece, Scandinavia, Turkey and South Africa. His expeditions to the Yenisey tundra of Siberia were described in his two books, Siberia in Europe (1880) and Siberia in Asia (1882), which were combined in the posthumous publication The Birds of Siberia (1901). One of the first European ornithologists to accept the American trinomial system to classify subspecies.
